

NO. 3

JOSEPH HAAS, V. S.,
Indianapolis, Ind.

W. P. WALTON.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For County Judge, THOMAS W. VARNON;
County Attorney, JOSEPH B. PANTON;
County Clerk, GEORGE B. COOPER;
Sheriff, J. N. MENEFEE;
Jailer, SAMUEL M. OWENS;
Assessor, E. D. KENNEDY;
Sup't of Common Schools, W. F. MCCLARY;
Surveyor, HARRY A. EVANS;
Coroner, ARCH CARSON.

Instead of staying at Frankfort and attending to the business the people pay them to do, the legislators went over to Cincinnati on invitation of the mayor to attend the funeral ceremonies of Minister Pendleton. They got there late at night, expecting to be met with carriages and a brass band and a speech of welcome, but instead had to walk to the hotel and hunt up the committee to know what to expect or what was expected of them. After a long delay they were told that they might walk along in the procession if they would be good boys, but they must not expect to be hailed. No more attention was paid to them than if they had been ordinary, everyday men and the whole ship's crew bolted for Kentucky as soon as they could decently depart, cursing Cincinnati and trying to kick themselves for not staying at home and attending to their business. Served them right. Minister Pendleton could have been given the imposing sepulchre accorded him without their presence at the people's expense.

The House Committee has favorably reported the direct tax bill recently passed by the Senate and it is almost certain that the very vicious measure will become a law. The minority of the committee used the veto message of Grover Cleveland on the question in their report against its passage, which is replete with forceful reasons why it should not become a law. The Louisville Times says: "Under its provisions Kentucky would receive something like $800,000, but before Kentucky's share is accepted our State Government should take steps to test the bill's constitutionality, in order to make sure that the State will not be called upon to refund the money at some future day, when it might be inconvenient to do so."

If all the general pension legislation which has been proposed by the introduction of bills in the House so far this session should pass it would take from the United States Treasury $675,000,000. Thirty-five millions alone would be required to meet the expenditures of the proposed Department Pension bill. If the republicans choose they can make the raid on the treasury to the full amount. They have all the branches of the government now, but their prodigality with the people's money is causing such a reaction against them that this will not long be the case. The next president and the next House will be democratic. That seems to be settled.

The souvenir edition of the Middleboro News would be a credit to any printing office and Editors Arnold and Dains are to be congratulated on an achievement that speaks wonders for the coming city. The beauties and advantages of Middleboro are set forth in graphic style and the 26 pages of the edition are illustrated with cuts of men and things that have made the place famous. Among the pictures of well-known people in this section are those of Messrs. L. F. Hubble, J. P. Smidder, W. E. Grubbs, E. L. Grubbs and D. C. Slaughter, all of which are easily recognizable.

The Richmond Register has rounded out a quarter of a century of honorable existence. Mr. F. M. Green has been at the helm for 18 years and has furnished his patrons with a clean and conservative paper, which has long since become a power in its section. It is admirably edited and conducted on the highest principles. For the last few years the editor has been assisted by Mr. Clarence E. Wood, who is also a fine writer and a capable journalist.

With water, water everywhere, Louisville has a prospect of experiencing that there is not a drop to drink. One of the engines at the water works is broken and it will take a week to fix it, during which time the company urgently requests the citizens to "touch it lightly." This warning is, it seems, superfluous. What does the average Louisville man care for water when there is so great an abundance of whiskey and beer on hand?

The Owensboro Inquirer has a new head and the editor will soon have the big head on account of all the nice notices that the press is making of his candidacy for Congress. But our advice to you Bro. Givens is to steer clear of political aspirations, if you would save the risk of a final "bust-head."

The mother of a soldier, who died after eating a pie bought during the war at Bardonia, Ky., has been awarded a pension. This is eminently right. The deadly pie has always been recognized as an instrument of war more terrible than the minnie ball.

The Democrats of Illinois are considering the propriety of nominating a candidate for United States Senator at their State Convention next June, and then use their best efforts to elect a legislature that will in turn elect the nominee. Gov. Palmer advises the action and says that while he prefers that the party select some other man, he will not shrink if he is chosen, but will enter the race to win. The ex-governor's popularity has been frequently demonstrated by success against fearful odds, and stranger things have happened than what is hoped in this matter. Should he succeed in electing a democratic legislature he will immediately become a powerful presidential probability. He is a grand old man and worthy of any honor.

The woman suffragists do not dwell in that sisterly love that should characterize their efforts to induce the world to believe that God Almighty had made a mistake in not making them men. Mrs. Chant, of England, and Miss Debra, formerly of Kentucky, a pair of short-haired old howlers for woman's rights, had a quarrel on the streets of Washington the other day, when the English female called the Kentucky monstrosity a liar. The latter could hardly repress her desire to "knock the stuffing out" of her assailant, but she restrained herself and used her tongue-lash instead. It was a beautiful and inspiring spectacle.

"Justice" sends us a letter from Danville complaining of the Advocate for failure to give Judge Morrow's oral statement with reference to the injunction suit against Mr. Marrs, along with the written opinion. The high-toned manner with which the gentlemen have all ways conducted the Advocate since they have been in charge leads us to think that the omission of the statement must have been an oversight. Mr. Marrs was himself while in the newspaper business always so scrupulously fair that we cheerfully print the letter and believe that Bro. Woolfolk will set him right.

The statement that Matilda Rudy, aged 125, died at Haywick last week and that her mother reached the age of 135 before she was called hence, must be taken with a grain of salt as it were. All the old negroes give their ages at from 10 to 25 years more than they are and there is never sufficient data concerning their birth to establish the fact of the remarkable ages at which so many of them are said to smother off their mortal coil.

In the last presidential election the vote of North Carolina was so close as to cause the republicans to cast upon her the aspersions that she might hereafter be regarded as a doubtful. But State, whatever hopes they may have had in this regard are dispelled by the exodus of the negro population to the Mississippi Valley. It is stated that fully 30,000 have left North and South Carolina in the last few months.

The old grannies who compose the U. S. Senate are in a great stew because the newspapers always have full reports of the proceedings of their secret sessions and threaten to have the reporters arrested and tried for sedition. They are treading on very dangerous ground, but we dare say they will not go near enough to the precipice to fall over.

CONGRESSMAN WILLSON wants to make desertion honorable by granting pensions to those cowardly creatures who threw down their arms in face of the foe, if the disability claimed for was incurred in actual service. Should such a law pass every one of the sneaking scamps would be on the pension roll inside of six months.

If it had been illegitimate, Mrs. Hunt of North Carolina, might with much truth have pleaded that it was such a little one, for the infant that she gave birth to two weeks ago is the smallest on record. It weighs but 15 pounds and a string of an inch long will almost go around the child's wrist twice. The little one is in good health.

The republican mob tried to unseat Clarke, of Alabama, who was elected by 3,500, and give his place to Thibet, his opponent, but there were a sufficient number of republicans manly enough to refuse to ratify the monumental theft proposed and agreed upon.

The Ohio Legislature has passed the bill to redistrict the State, so that the democrats will have some show in that worst of gerrymandered States by the republicans. The bill insures the democrats 15 of the 21 Congressmen.

Let Justice be Done Though the Heavens Fall.

In the Editor of the Interior Journal

The Kentucky Advocate in a recent issue printed the lengthy and labored opinion of Judge Morrow, in which he ruled that an injunction should be issued in favor of the present Advocate Company, composed of Samuel G. Boyle, Henry E. Woolfolk and Boyle Gill Boyle, restraining its founder, Jas. H. Marrs, from re-entering the business in Danville. The writer was present when this opinion was read by Judge Morrow, and he promised with an oral statement in which he said substantially that upon a careful examination of the proof in the case he was entirely satisfied that neither party to the suit had been influenced by an improper animus or motive, but that each no doubt thought that he was right and conscientious in his interpretation of the original contract between Marrs and Samuel G. Boyle, and then read the opinion which was printed in the Advocate. To an outsider who did not know Mr. Marrs, or who was not acquainted with the circumstances of the case, the mere reading of this opinion would leave the impression that he had been thwarted in the attempt to violate a contract, therefore, as a matter of simple justice to him, the Advocate ought to have been generous enough to have given him the benefit of the judge's oral statement when it published the lengthy written opinion, because it fully exonerated him from attempting to do anything but what he conceived he had the legal and moral right to do in defense of his own rights in the case. The unwritten code of journalistic ethics, to which Mr. Marrs subscribes and to which he adhered during his long editorial connection with the Advocate, we know full well would have constrained him to have done this, and we can only regret that his successor at the head of its columns failed to come up to this standard of courtesy and fairness. JESSE.

NEWS CONDENSED

—Hardin county is shortly to vote on the question of repealing her prohibition law.

—A train of 11 coaches broke in two near Bayview, N. Y., and 10 people were killed and 25 injured.

—Russellville, which has been under prohibition for a number of years, has returned to the saloon system.

—The death of young Abraham Lincoln is likely to cause his father's resignation as Minister to England.

—A farmer near Springfield, O., went into his potato pit when it rained in on him. His body was found after a long search frozen still.

—Five prisoners were enabled to escape from jail at Moulton, Ala., through a big hole torn in the roof of their prison by a bolt of lightning.

—Assistant Postmaster-General Clark confesses to having turned out 31,000 democratic postmasters in one year. That is practical politics.

—There is said to be great suffering along the Kentucky river by many poor people whose little property was washed away by the recent flood.

—Six members of the family of J. C. McGregor, reading clerk of the Ohio House, including himself, have died of diphtheria within two weeks past.

—In a short hand tournament in London the winner of the prize wrote 2,000 words in 10 minutes and then transcribed them into long-hand, without an error in 40 minutes.

—The democratic gains in the New York municipal elections prove even greater than at first reported. The republican bosses move around with anxious air and pale faces.

—William Bucknell, died of apoplexy in Philadelphia. He was the founder of Bucknell University at Lewisburg, Pa., and his donations to public charities aggregated over a million dollars.

—The express company has recovered $21,940 of the $25,000 stolen by Agent Walton at Dallas. He left $17,000 at a house of ill-fame before absconding, which the company got onto.

—Three boys, the oldest only 14 years of age, were arrested at Griffin, W. Va., for an attempt to poison a neighborhood by emptying two dozen packages of rough on rats in the wells of those against whom they had spite.

—James U. Robertson and William Bailey, who offended a gang of drunken roughs by trying to prevent their disturbing religious services in Scott county Sunday night, were fired on as they were going home from the church, Robertson being killed and Bailey seriously wounded. The party was arrested and is now in the Georgetown jail.

—RUBEN BOWLES, the famous convict, lives in fear of the community. His cellars are always ransacked, and his person and jewelry are protected by such a way that the most grasping mob could not reach them. He lives in a state of constant terror.

—MRS. CUSTER, widow of the gallant General, is said to be a woman absolutely without fear. She used to accompany her husband wherever he would allow her to go during his campaigns, and her fondness for out-of-door life has never left her.

—BEEFALO HUN had an interesting experience at Barcelona. As he was about to leave that city he was accosted by an envoy of the Spanish Government, who asked him if he would accept a certain decoration. "Not by a long sight," said Colonel Cody. "I am already Duke of Colorado." The envoy bowed respectfully and disappeared.

—WILLIAM E. GLADSTONE is a voracious reader of current periodical literature and always reads the advertisements. He subscribes for the American edition of certain American-English magazines, in order that he may obtain from their advertising pages any new ideas to be gleaned therefrom as to American industries and enterprises.

—VICTORS attempts have been made to account for the marvelous influence which Stanley, the African explorer, exerted over his Zanzibar followers, and also over all the natives with whom he was brought into contact during his transafrican expeditions, but perhaps the most feasible is that while attributes it to the peculiar expression of his eyes. One of his European companions in his recent expedition has said that "Stanley first looks at the natives as if he were going to eat them, and then when they give in and do what he wants he looks as if he had done so and was grateful to them for the meal."

THE LOUISVILLE STORE

Goods are arriving daily in large quantities and will be sold at their usual moderate prices. When all of the people understand, as a great many do, that we pay cash for what we buy and get cash for what we sell, thereby saving our customers a good discount at both ends of the line, and that we buy from only the best manufacturers, who put their trademark on every piece of goods because they are not ashamed of their work; when all the people get these facts into their heads they will wear better Dress Goods, Clothing, Boots, Shoes, Hats, &c., pay less for them and have more money to jingle in their pockets.

Just think what the little sum of 50 cents can buy at our store: 50 cents can buy 10 yards of good Gloucester and Allen Colico; 50c can buy 10 yds. of good Sea Island Cotton; 50c can buy 7 yards of good yard-wide Bleached Cotton; 50c can buy 8 yards of good Plaid Dress Cottons; 50c can buy 10 yards of Worsted Goods; 50c can buy a new style Crusher Hat; 50c can buy a good flexible Corset; 50c can buy hundreds of other articles in our store too numerous to mention.
